JUSP newsletter

From March 2018, we will be changing the frequency of the JUSP newsletter to every two months, so look out for the next newsletter in May.

More reports and suppliers added

This month we have added further datasets for four publishers to JUSP.

- American Psychological Association (APA) – BR2, DB1 & PR1
- De Gruyter – BR2 & BR3
- JSTOR - JR2 and JR5
- MIT Press - JR1 GOA
- SPIE - International Society for Optics and Photonics – BR2 & BR3

In addition, by working with Emerald we have also gathered usage data for a further 27 institutions that have books or journals with the publisher.

A full list of available reports and publishers can be viewed on our participants page: http://jusp.jisc.ac.uk/participants/. To view which publisher reports we are collecting for your institutions take a look at the YOUR DATA tab in the JOURNALS and BOOKS & OTHER sections of the portal.

Friendly Guide to Release 5 for Librarians

Release 5 of the COUNTER Code of Practice will come into effect from January 2019 and providers will be required to start supplying these reports in order to be COUNTER-compliant. In March, the Friendly Guide to Release 5 for Librarians was published to help librarians prepare for the transition to R5. The guide includes information about the new Metrics, Master Reports and Standard Views. It also provides a section which maps the key Release 4 reports to their Release 5 counterparts as well as providing several user scenarios. You can download the guide here in PDF format at: https://www.projectcounter.org/wp-content/uploads/2018/03/

Jisc and JUSP at UKSG

The UKSG annual conference takes place in Glasgow from Monday 9 April 2018 to Wednesday 11 April 2018 and Jisc speakers are presenting at several sessions on a number of topics including data visualisations, the national bibliographic knowledgebase project and open access. A full list can be viewed at: https://www.jisc.ac.uk/events/jisc-at-uksg-annual-conference-and-exhibition-2018-9-apr-2018.

The breakout session 'Visualising the data: how accessible insights can really deliver impact for libraries' will feature case studies illustrating how libraries are using the JUSP visualisations to communicate statistical information and the impact they have delivered. Also showing the impact of the Library Data Labs project on both librarians and their institutions.

Siobhán Burke has written a blog post on Jisc's sessions at UKSG https://libraryservices.jiscinvolve.org/wp/2018/03/join-jisc-at-uksg-2018/.

Transforming our library support services

If you are attending the conference, drop by stands 47 and 49 where you can find out about Jisc's transformation programme for library support services and sign up to get involved.

You can also learn more and follow progress on the various activities by visiting the programme blog: https://libraryservices.jiscinvolve.org/wp/.

Another institution joins JUSP

Welcome to Northern Regional College who joined JUSP this month.

JUSP update and Q&A webinar

We ran a webinar at the beginning of March that gave an update and overview of publisher and providers, database and platform reports, data visualisations, and support and training. Slides and an edited recording are available from the JUSP events and training page: http://jusp.jisc.ac.uk/events-training/.

For those of you particularly interested in seeing the demo of the data visualisations we have also made this part of the recording available separately on the 'Guide to visualisations' page: http://jusp.jisc.ac.uk/guides-to-visualisations/#link6.
